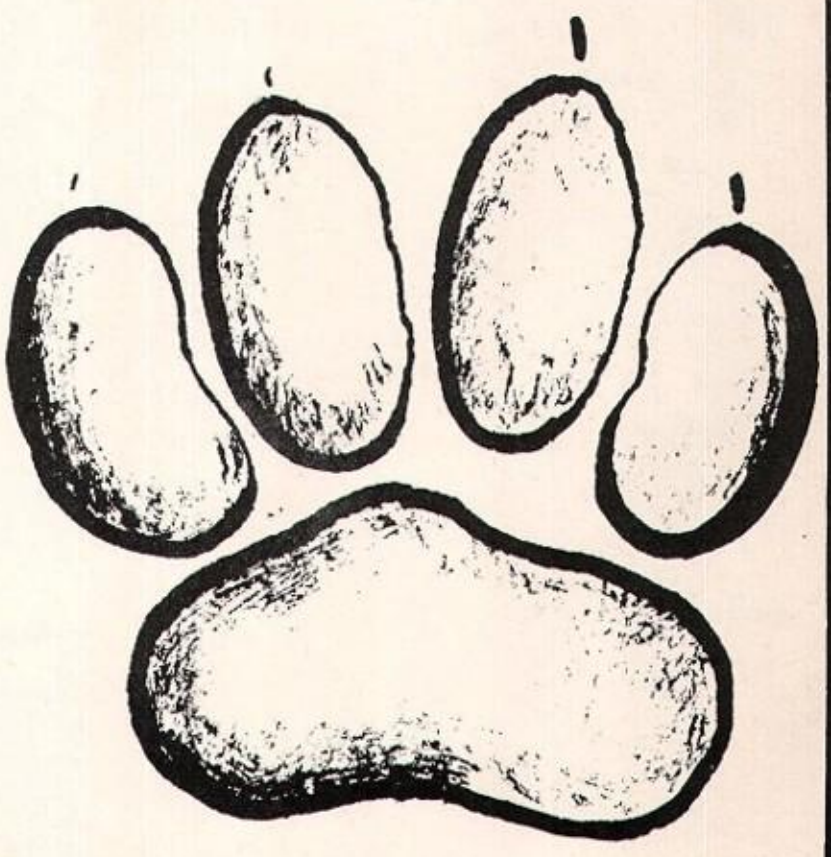
Foreword

As the years move steadily on, memories and recollections of past pleasures always manage to evade us.

This, the first Annual of Pattison High, is to be used from time to time by you as your own Magic Carpet to the Past.



Mrs. J. C. Muske

To whom else should our first Annual be dedicated but to our own beloved "Miss Mickey".

How many times during that first terrifying — yet wonderful year at School she made everything right again for us when we felt so alone and lost.

History of The Pattison School

The present Pattison Schools are not the product solely of the ingenuity of the people who have lived and planned in this community beside the Brazos. These people have had a wonderfully rich area in which to work. Much of these riches came from the Brazos. A wealth of minerals and sediment has been dropped during floods along the western boundary of the Pattison District to make this area one of the richest farming districts in Texas. It was from the returns of the fine crops raised that the first local support of the Pattison School District came.

In 1874, the year after Waller County was formed, Judge Waller, a descendant of Edwin Waller, gave an acre of land for a school in the Pattison area. This was the first gift of land for school purposes in Waller County. The acre was in what is now the Clemons Estate. County records show that until 1893 the schools were known as community or neighborhood schools. These schools were listed as Pattison School, Besses Creek School, Clemons School, Asbury School, Samuel's School, and Pattison Negro School. In Commissioners Court meeting of July and August 1893 the system of community schools was discontinued and the county was divided into school districts. Pattison District was designated as Waller County School District Number 14. The schools listed in District Fourteen were Pattison White School, Pattison Negro School, Besses Creek School, Clemons School, and Mt. Olive School. In the 1900 storm, the school was demolished. Disaster relief money was used in rebuilding the school which consisted of one large room. This served the community until 1911 when enlarged enrollment made it necessary to add another room thus adding a second teacher. In 1920-21, a third teacher was added.

During 1920, three and a quarter sections of prairie land, part of District 17, was added to District 14. These three and a quarter sections of land were destined to become one of the most valuable parts of the district. It is now part of the great Katy Oil and Gas Field, and has done much to make possible the good school facilities of the present Pattison School District.

Superintendent's Home

In the decade starting in 1920 there was a period of expansion for the Pattison District. Besses Creek pupils were moved to Pattison. The Adams area together with District No. 16 consolidated with District 14. In 1929-30 the Asbury part of Sunnyside District 13 was added to Pattison District, and this completed the boundaries of the present district.

Duplex

Gymnasium
1935

In 1923, a four room brick building was erected. Later additions were made to it which enlarged it enough to meet classification and accreditation requirements. In 1935, Pattison School became a fully accredited high school. In 1935 also, the present gymnasium was built.

In 1946, a building program was begun, which added the present modern school building, the power house, the shop, the bus garage, the superintendent't home, and a duplex. Now this is one of the most attractive school plants in this part of Texas.
